Our people will be glad to know that the President is en route home, via dry land, after a good rest. Let the critics say what they please, no public man has grown fatter in the popular estimation than President Arthur, and the people do not grudge him enjoyment.

PRESIDENT Arthur reached Washington last night, and it is reported that the stories of his illness have been greatly exaggerated. In response to an inquiry the President stated that his trip to Florida had been a most enjoyable one, and that he had never felt better in his life.

Ohio has enacted a law making it a punishable offense for any one to sell or give a toy pistol to a person under 14 years of age; a dealer who violates the law is liable for all damages resulting. It is a wise enactment, but hard on the Fourth of July irrepressibles.

The rough weather of Saturday night seems to have extended over a wide area. In the west there were violent snow storms, and at Denver a severe gale. The Union Pacific railroad was blocked by snow, and trains were much delayed. At Salt Lake there was considerable snow and sleet. In Mississippi a destructive cyclone passed over the country, destroying the towns of Wesson and Beauregard. At the last named place not a house was left standing, and the loss of life was fearful.

It is beginning to dawn on the minds of the members of the legislature that there was more to the Bradwell-NcNulty contest than was apparent on the outside. Bradwell, if he had been admitted, would have voted for the Harper high-license bill, while McNulty belongs to the low license, "two glasses of beer for a nickel" crowd. The representatives of the low saloons having captured the Democratic side of the house, forced them to resort to the most desperate methods to prevent the seating of another high license member. The great Democratic party had made an alliance, offensive and defensive, with the cheap whisky gang, and, in order to secure the votes of the slums at the next general election, could see no harm in capturing the vote of a Republican member by keeping him drunk and in the company of the element to nail into power next year. What a fine partnership!

It is a mournful fact that in the recent disgraceful scenes in the house of representatives at Springfield, there was not a Democratic member who was not willing to profit by the shameful tactics resorted to. Among the seventy-four representatives on that side of the house there was not one who refused to take advantage of the saloon and bawdy house appliances brought into requisition to carry their point. Out of these seventy-four men there are doubtless some who maintain a reputation for respectability and decency among their neighbors, and yet every one of them shouted with joy over the result that was brought about through the instrumentality of a professional gambler, who plied his victim with bug-juice and kept him in houses of ill-repute in order to carry out the scheme devised by the "reputable" leaders of the Democratic party. And all this was done in order that a partisan advantage might be gained—that a Democratic ward bumper might be kept in a seat to which he was not elected. It is a sad picture to contemplate, and it is hard to see how any decent Democrat can find in it much to feel proud over.

SENATOR EDMUNDS sat for an hour in the gallery of the Georgia Democratic Convention the other day, and said: "It's a fine-looking body of men, as fine as we could get together in Vermont, and thus a good deal for me to say."

EDMUNDS, it is said, was much affected by the news of Prince Gorzechakoff's death. "Beaconsfield and Gorzechakoff," he remarked to those around him—"the only men whom I could becomingly recognize as antagonists—both disappeared! Friends, my turn is coming."

That unique and diverting creature, Oscar Wilde, is in Paris, writing his book on America. It is to be a two-volume affair, devoted mainly to "life and art" on this side of the Atlantic. He protests that he was pleased with America, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, and really enjoyed his visit here immensely, you know. "Even in Chicago, he says, "I found much of interest"—and he is good enough to name in particular the wheel of the water-wheels there, "a mighty majestic, unutterably harmonious" thing, which will be the inspiration of a "machinery symphony," he predicts, "if ever America produces a great musician." It is a comfort to know that Oscar still regards us kindly. He does not propose to come here again.

What "Mrs. Grundy" Says.
New York Mail and Express.

That the new oblong photograph is now all the rage.

That the cooks at the Vanderbilt ball were paid $100 each for their service.

That florists say their Easter sale of flowers was this year larger than ever before.

That terra cotta as a color has already been used for much more than it is worth.

That Dr. Dix's published lectures on women sell like the traditional hot cakes.

That next season's operatic war is likely to be an exceedingly interesting one.

That Madame Nilsson's social invitations are far more numerous than she can accept.

That the supplementary social season develops a mass of wretched gossip and scandal.

That now is the time when the woman from the country goes about town looking for bargains.

That tourists home from Florida tell of much sickness contracted by lack of drainage there.

That some of the most fashionable people are the very ones who are slowest in paying their bills.

That invited guests to a dinner party next week are requested to appear in "Vanderbilt costume."

That the new Hussar sacque worn by the ladies is nothing if not "excessively swell and stylish."

That it is a somewhat singular fact that defalcations in private life are never recorded in the newspapers.

No Democratic Party.

The Chicago Times says of the fury of the Iroquois speech of Harrison:

"The upshot he has produced is a practical proof of the verity of the Times' positive assertion that there is no such thing as a political party having the name of Democratic party. There are election machines of that name—mere artifices for office getting, controlled and manipulated by office hunters. There is an organized appetite of that name—an eager, covetous desire to hold office as an ease mode of living and getting money without earning it. There is also an irrational, senseless and rather pugnacious force of habit of that name which impels multitudes of electors to arm themselves with voting papers having that word printed on them, and to obey the orders of self-seeking hambangs who say their prayers to that word without being able to give a reason for doing so. But that there is a democrat party, in the sense of a body of citizens formed around a political object to effect a political object by united action to that political end, is not true, and has not been true since there was a democrat party organized to uphold and enlarge the area of slavery."

The Capen Silver Wedding.

A. r. and Mrs. J. H. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lewis have returned home from Bloomington where on Friday evening they were among the many guests present at the celebration of the silver wedding of Mr. Henry Capen and Miss Erietta Clark, who resided in Decatur for several years previous to 1868, when Mr. Capen was in the queenwear business. Speaking of the celebration, the Paragraph of Saturday said:

"Twenty-five years ago the couple were at a wedding, intended to catch the eye of some suburban green-ward by a copious flow of blood, due to the putting out of one or two of our legal lights, illuminated for several months. It has been a matter of public knowledge that the relations between Frank J. Bowman and John M. Lyman were very friendly, and the latter was assigned to the chairman. The former, Mr. Lyman, then said that other organizations had instructed him to speak, and he said, 'I never felt better in my life,' was the response, 'said anything said to the contrary would be believed by me.' The man who could not tell the truth, but made up lies about me." Despite the president's assurance that he was not the author of the speech, he was not known to that date. His hair, in conspicuous distinction from the face of the remainder of the party, is not that of a man, but of a boy, and is very pale, owing to the peeling off of the skin. The faces of Phillips, Chandler and the rest are tanned by the sun, and look like what one would expect to see in returning fishing parties. The president's hair is not so bright, nor is his eye so bright.

Special Dispatches

THE PRESIDENT'S RETURN.

His Warm Reception—Exaggerated Stories of His Ill-Health.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—The president again set foot on Washington ground at 9:30 last evening. He was a disengaged looking individual, and his evident pleasure at his safe return, and his hearty handshake with all met him, indicated him to be in excellent health.

The party passage through the little waiting-room where poor Garfield was laid low by the assassin, and where the driving rain almost prevented the arrival of the carriage, could not be seen.

FATHER'S PINE APPEARANCE.

A momentary cloud flitted across the President's face at the allusion to the newspaper reports, and he glanced about at the audience of reporters, but said nothing on the subject.

Arrest of Farris the Triple Murderer.

STANTON, Ill., April 23.—The arrest of Farris, the supposed principal in the triple murder of the McDaniel family, last October, brings to light the following information of the horrible crime. Wm. Farris, known as Little Wm., residing at what is called the McDaniel farm, in Tazewell County, several miles west of here, was taken into custody a few days ago and placed in the state prison at Joliet, where he was accused of being implicated in the terrible murder committed in the neighborhood of Mount Pulaski, Logan County, last October. Shortly before his arrest he was seen in the room of the Lubin saloon in Stanton, and left these parts, returning soon after the shooting. He was a disengaged looking individual, and his evident pleasure at his safe return, and his hearty handshake with all met him, indicated him to be in excellent health.

The next season's operatic war is likely to be an exceedingly interesting one.

SAMPLE MONUMENTS.

A large crowd of curious city and country people gathered in the yard at Mr. John Strohm's Marble Works on the corner north of the tabernacle Saturday afternoon to witness the interesting proceeding of swinging a ponderous six-ton block of "Elliotville" from a dray to the ground by means of a derrick. The operation was one of considerable interest, because it was a difficult undertaking and because so large a block is not often brought to Decatur. However, the "heavy weight" was successfully lowered, and the spectators departed after viewing the many handsome marble monuments in the yard and shop. A reporter went inside the shop and found a large corps of skillful artists busy at work chiseling and polishing monuments of various sizes and beautiful designs, ranging in price from $100 to $1000 each. The management of the works is in charge of the proprietor, Mr. John Strohm, and his son, Mr. Ed. Strohm, and the business of the establishment is deservedly in a flourishing condition. Only first-class work is turned out at pieces that cannot be duplicated by any firm in the larger cities. Persons wishing the more expensive monuments to place in "cities of the dead" need not go away from home. They can be accommodated by Mr. Strohm, who is prepared to furnish the finest monuments at a saving to purchasers of from 20 to 25 per cent.

The "Elliotsville" block alluded to above, which is 12 feet long and 3 feet in diameter, is to be transformed into a shapely rustic stump, with four polished shields for inscriptions. It was ordered by William Stith, and will be placed on the Stith burial lot in the Old Berlin graveyard, three miles north of New Berlin in Sangamon county. It will be the finest monument in that cemetery.

The Strohm shop is filled with numerous beautiful monuments made to order for parties in various parts of the state. Shipments will be made this week to the following named places: Geo. W. Council, a four-column 5-ton monument, Springfield; Wesley Council, 7 small monuments, Springfield; Alvin VanGundy, a four-column monument, Blairs; Mrs. Jane A. Marshall, Jesse H. Potts, Benj. Fagin, W. A. McKinney, P. A. Clements, H. Baugh, T. Butler, Mrs. Mary Ann Burke, Mt. Sterling; Geo. I. Fields, Versailles; A. Boyd and Mary A. Green, Bluffs; W. B. Mauck, L. C. Higgins, W. R. Hale, E. Elridge, Naples, and W. L. Hilt, a magnificent Scotch granite monument, Jacksonville.
